RGC ASIA | STAFF RECRUITMENT

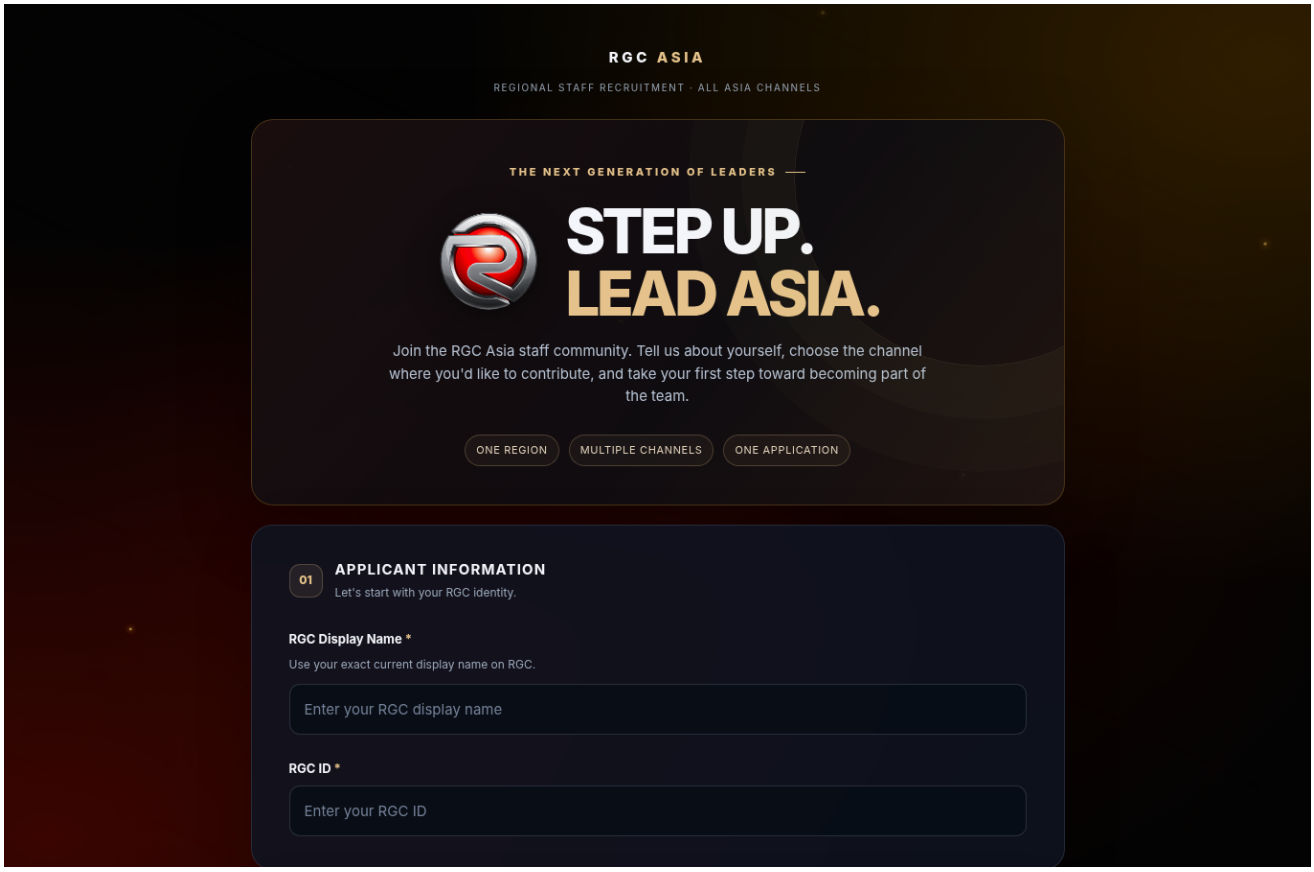

Manager Quick Guide — How to manage channel availability and review applications

Recruitment page: rgcasiaevents.github.io/asiaregion-staff-recruitment/
Manager spreadsheet: Use the shared Google Sheets link provided by the Asia management team.

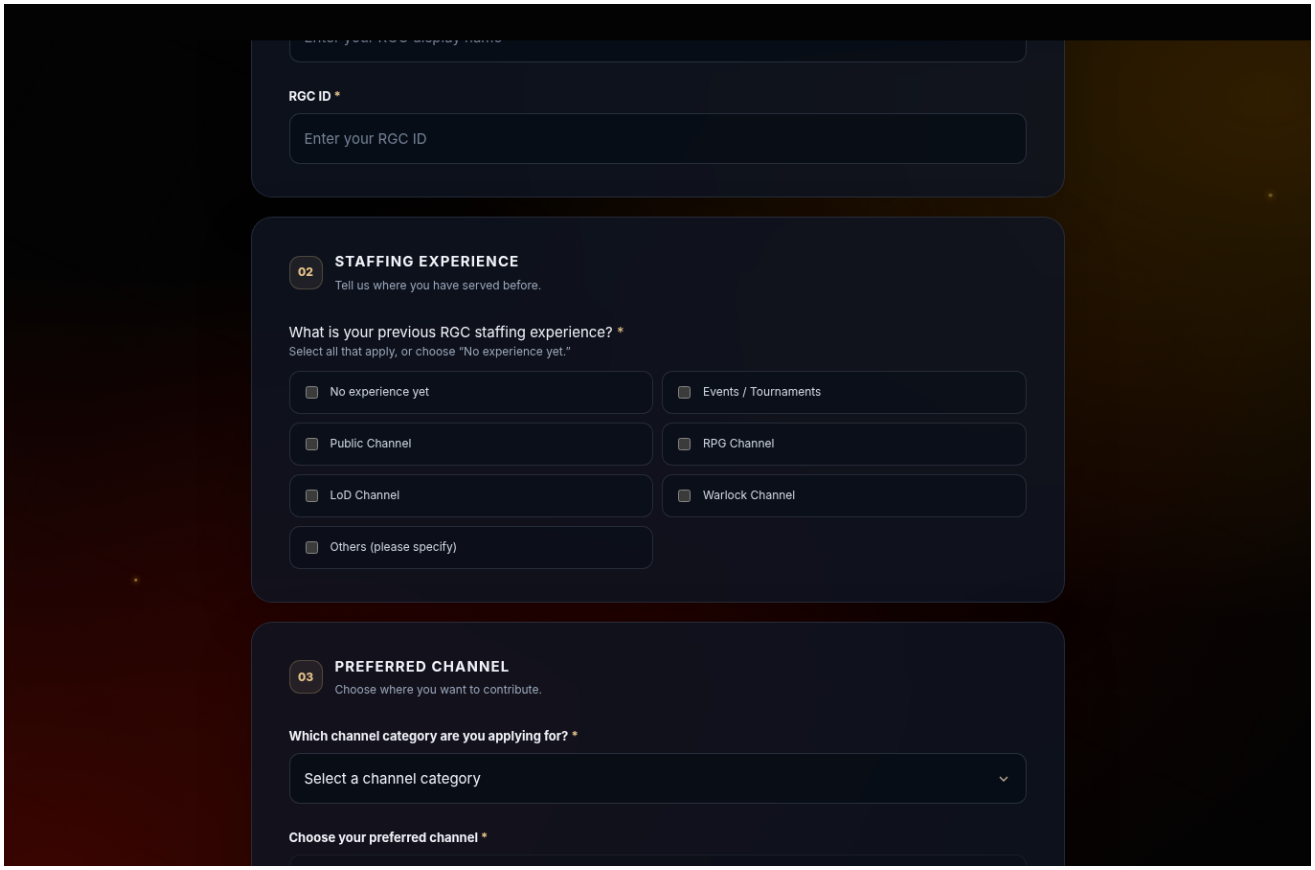

Visual reference: recruitment screenshots below are rendered from the project HTML; spreadsheet images are clearly labeled illustrations, not captures of private sheet data.

1 | Understand the applicant journey

Applicants enter their exact RGC Display Name and RGC ID, choose staffing experience, select a channel category and an available channel, explain why they should be selected, and accept the minimum two-month commitment before submitting.

Recruitment landing page and first applicant fields (project HTML reference).

Middle section of the applicant form (project HTML reference).

2 | Open or close recruitment by channel

Open the Channel_Config tab in Google Sheets. Column A identifies the category, column B names the channel, and column C contains the Recruiting (TRUE/FALSE) checkbox. Check TRUE to accept applications for that channel; uncheck FALSE to disable selection. The website retrieves this availability when the page loads.

RGC Asia — Staff Recruitment / Channel_Config

Category	Channel	Recruiting (TRUE/FALSE)
Public Channel	(Asia) Public	☐
Public Channel	Philippines	☑
Public Channel	Thailand	☐
Events/Tournament Channel	(Asia) MiniTours	☑
League Channel	Asia League	☐
Non-DotA Channel	LoD Asia	☐

ILLUSTRATIVE EXAMPLE — not a screenshot of your private spreadsheet

Illustrative sheet layout only. Actual channel names and checkbox states may differ.

Manager tip: Do not rename the categories, channel names, or tab. The website and script match them exactly. You can turn individual channels on and off without changing the HTML.

3 | Review incoming applications

Open the Applications tab. Each successful submission creates a new row with timestamp, display name, RGC ID, staffing experience, optional other experience, channel category, preferred channel, motivation, and commitment acceptance.

RGC Asia — Staff Recruitment / Applications

Timestamp	RGC Display Name	RGC ID	Staffing Experience	Channel Category	Preferred
[date/time]	ExamplePlayer	123456	Events/Tournaments	Public Channel	Philippine

ILLUSTRATIVE EXAMPLE — not a screenshot of your private spreadsheet

Illustrative example with fictional applicant data. The actual tab has nine columns.

Review entries for accuracy and suitability. Filter by preferred channel, compare experience and motivation, and contact applicants using your normal RGC management process. Avoid editing or deleting submission records without maintaining a backup.

4 | Important operating notes

Applications do not automatically approve candidates. This is a collection and review tool, not a selection or appointment system.

Access control: Give spreadsheet editing rights only to managers authorized to change channel availability or manage applicant records. Applicant details should not be publicly shared.

Submission confirmation: An application appearing in the sheet confirms it was recorded. If the website shows a timeout, check for an existing row before asking the applicant to resubmit.

Technical changes: If code is modified, the Apps Script deployment may need a new version. Routine TRUE/FALSE changes do not require redeployment.

5 | Suggested manager workflow

Before recruitment: Check Channel_Config and enable only channels needing staff.
During recruitment: Monitor Applications and review entries periodically.
After recruitment: Disable channels that are no longer accepting applicants; archive or back up the application records.

Prepared using the RGC Asia Staff Recruitment HTML and Apps Script files from this project. The private live Google Sheet could not be inspected directly, so screenshots of it are illustrative.